Gen. Eyal Eisenberg's wake-up call

Home Front Commander Maj. Gen. Eyal Eisenberg warned Monday, Sept. 5 of the increasing peril of a total Middle East war in the wake of the Arab revolts and Israel's rift with Turkey. His comments shocked

Israel's policy-makers and defense establishment out of their placidity. The defense minister's adviser Amos Gilead, hurriedly denied this prediction. "Israel's security situation has never been better," he said insisting "The Arab regimes around us are stable."

debkafile: The general's wake-up call was both apt and timely.

Gates Says Netanyahu an Ungrateful Ally

Global Agenda 10:44 AM 9/6/2011

Former Defense Secretary Robert Gates calls Netanyahu an “ungrateful ally,” journalist Jeffrey Goldberg writes.

- Moscow: Dialogue with Israel Only Way to Palestinian State
The establishment of a viable Palestinian state is only possible through peaceful dialogue with Israel and the UN should not be an alternative to a negotiated solution, Russian Foreign Minister Sergei Lavrov said on Monday. Negotiations are the only way of ensuring the creation of a full-fledged Palestinian state "that will live in peace and security with Israel and other countries in the region," Lavrov said. (RIA-Novosti-Russia) Be careful of the Russian Motive here!!! And they will surely Vote for it! Russia want negotiations for different reasons which would leave Israel Smaller and weaker..and if they are genuine,tell the pal to recognize the Jewish State

- Sept. at UN: Jihad is Against the Bible

First of a series on PA's unilateral request for UN recognition on September 20th: It is another signal date in the annals of global jihad, says the writer.

Diana West

Beyond the 10th anniversary of the 9/11 attacks looms another signal date in the annals of global jihad. That date is Sept. 20, when the Palestinian Authority's Mahmoud Abbas is expected to petition the United Nations for statehood.

What would a U.N.-ordained Palestinian state have to do with global jihad? Practically everything, because such statehood would mark a major victory in the long war on Israel's existence. And, whether unadmitted or unimagined, it is Israel on which the axis of Islamic jihad turns.

Why Israel? Ye'or asks. "Given the immense territories conquered and Islamized over thirteen centuries of expansion and war," she writes, "why would Muslim countries keep plotting to destroy Israel?" And further: "Why does the immense oil wealth of Muslim nations nourish a flood of hatred that poisons the heart of humanity against such a small nation? Why is Israel considered so alarming?"

What Israel possesses is the Bible. It is Israel on which the axis of Islamic jihad turns

..... The well-read global citizen might regurgitate something about land, modern Zionism and the post-1948 "plight of the Palestinians," but these are stock narratives overwriting the age-old reason. "What Israel possesses," Ye'or explains, "is the Bible."

EU Should Demand Same Peace-Building Measures from Palestinians as It Did Before Recognizing New States in Europe

- Amichai Magen

An EU stance opposing a unilateral Palestinian declaration of independence will send a clear message that peace cannot be imposed; it must be built. Since the end of the Cold War, the EU has played a pivotal role in transforming the authoritarian countries of the former Soviet bloc and the Balkans into functioning democratic states. It has done so by taking a cautious, long-term view of peace-building, and by insisting that true peace and security depend on neighbors becoming the kind of states where stable democracy, the rule of law, respect for human rights and peaceful resolution of disputes are effectively guaranteed.

Who Is the Middle East's Biggest Loser from the Arab Revolutions?

- Walter Russell Mead

Iran is joined at the hip to Syria, the most hated regime in the Arab world. Turkey seems to be making a bid to pull Hamas away from its Syrian-Iranian allies; losing its connection to the radically-chic wing of Palestinian resistance will undercut Tehran even more. The Assad regime is damaged goods now, hated and scorned across the Arab world - but Tehran needs it more than ever.

A UN Miracle: Israel Is Vindicated on the Gaza Flotilla, But Turkey Still Pouts

- Editorial (Wall Street Journal)

- Here's a story for the man-bites-dog folder: The United Nations has conducted another inquiry into an Israeli military operation - and produced a report that mainly vindicates the Jewish state.
- Given the UN's track record on Israel, one might have expected this latest report to be a reprise of Richard Goldstone's notorious report alleging Israeli war crimes during its 2009 war with Gaza (charges later retracted by Mr. Goldstone). Instead, the Palmer report offers a point-by-point rebuttal to some of the most preposterous accusations leveled against Israel.
- One such accusation from the Turks is that Israel's naval blockade of Gaza is illegal because blockades can only be legally imposed on another state, and Israel has never recognized Palestine as a state. The Palmer report dismisses that bit of legal legerdemain, noting that " Hamas is the de facto political and administrative authority in Gaza," that "it is Hamas that is firing projectiles into Israel or permitting others to do so," that "law does not operate in a political vacuum" and thus "Israel was entitled to take reasonable steps to prevent the influx of weapons into Gaza."
- All this might have provoked a bit of soul-searching within the Turkish government, just as its once-warm embrace of Syria's Bashar Assad has. Instead, Prime Minister Erdogan has doubled down on his anti-Israel bets, insisting that Jerusalem apologize to Turkey, compensate the victims and lift its blockade of Gaza as the price for his forgiveness.

- The Palmer report is a fresh reminder - from the least likely of sources - of why Israel has no honorable choice but to spurn those demands. The Turks will learn in their own time that being Hamas' patron is a loser's game.
